6. Dates to add to calendar:

Re-Scheduled Resilience Resource Workshop on January 26 at the Neighborhood House from 10-3 pm. Through a collaboration between the Gulf of Maine Research Institute, the Island Institute, and A Climate to Thrive, we're gathering leaders from five communities – Tremont, Southwest Harbor, Mount Desert, Bar Harbor, and the Cranberry Isles – to learn from and connect with resilience professionals about the various resources available to support climate resilience planning needs and goals.

This workshop is designed for municipal and community leaders who are involved in planning decisions. Through attending, you'll build relationships, learn about and practice tools to support community-driven climate planning, and contribute your unique perspective to this process.

If you are interested in attending, but can only make part of the scheduled workshop, please let us know, as your attendance is the priority. If you know of a colleague or another community leader who you think has a valuable perspective to add, please feel free to pass this along to them. If you have any questions, or to RSVP (please do so by December 4th), reach out to brianna@aclimatetothrive.org.
